Arval provides a new alternative for UK fleets

Arval UK, a leading vehicle leasing and fleet management company, is giving businesses in the UK a new option when it comes to insuring their company vehicles.

Research commissioned by Arval shows that companies in the UK generally opt for one of two solutions when it comes to insurance. They either use an insurance broker or go direct through an insurance company. Arval is now offering a third choice which delivers new levels of flexibility and convenience at a competitive price.

How fleet insurance is sourced in the UK

Arval currently provides two products in the UK. The first is Arval Total Care which is an optional package allowing customers to choose an insured lease vehicle. The package includes Contract Hire with third party insurance, own damage protection, glass damage protection, maintenance management, breakdown assistance and accident management. Pricing is fixed for the duration of the vehicle lease providing reassurance and stability for customers. While Arval has also just launched a fleet insurance product which simply and cost effectively enables coverage of an entire fleet of vehicles, including those cars and vans that are not funded by Arval. These new options are initially available to Arval's small and medium sized customers.

Arval is already seeing encouraging demand for the newly launched products, a position reinforced by the research which sought the views of 300 UK fleet operators. It showed that as many as 22% of companies with less than 100 employees are considering taking insurance through their leasing company.

The research among companies of all sizes also shows that the majority of companies separate their fleet insurance policy needs from overall business insurance needs. 72% of companies with less than 100 employees and over 50% of larger companies have separate fleet insurance policies making comparisons and switching much easier.

Robert Pieczka, Marketing & Insurance Director at Arval comments:

"Traditionally companies have sourced their fleet insurance from either a broker or an insurer directly. Arval is now providing a third way. A new alternative with easy switching process, competitive pricing, a unique offer and an option for Arval Total Care with fixed pricing for the duration of the lease."

He adds, "Products like this have been popular across other European countries for a number of years where we see high levels of take-up. With the benefits that these products provide, we anticipate a growing number of businesses in the UK to consider this alternative option."
